Nearly 1,000 turn out for John Dennis dinner

Nearly 1,000 people turned out Friday night for a banquet honoring Scott County Sheriff John Dennis for his 24 years in office.

About 200 people were unable to find a place to sit in the ballroom of the Ramada Inn and ended up eating in other parts of the building.

"It's the biggest thing I've ever seen," Scott County Magistrate Lloyd G. Briggs said as he looked over the crowd.

The celebration quickly turned into a Friar's Roast with Dennis and members of the audience the target of jokes and humorous stories told by Master of Ceremonies Sam Harbin and speakers at the head table.

The speakers included Walter E. "Buck" Buerger, sheriff of Jefferson County; W. J.

"Pedro" Simmons, Mississippi County sheriff; Capt. Wayne Brooks, Troop E commander of the Missouri State Highway Patrol; and Col. John Doherty, chief of detectives for St. Louis police.

A number of candidates for local offices and Democratic gubernatorial contenders Joseph Teasdale of Kansas City and State Sen. William Cason of Clinton used the opportunity to circulate through the crowd and plug their campaigns.

Harbin read letters praising Dennis from State Treasurer James Spainhower and U.S. Sen. Stuart Symington. He also played a tape recording from U.S. Sen. Tom Eagleton.

"You have a host of friends who believe in you," Harbin told Dennis.

Sheriff Buerger, who referred to Dennis as the "Gray-headed Wonder" and "the Old Gray Fox" said whoever is elected to the Scott County sheriff's office in November will have "big shoes to fill."

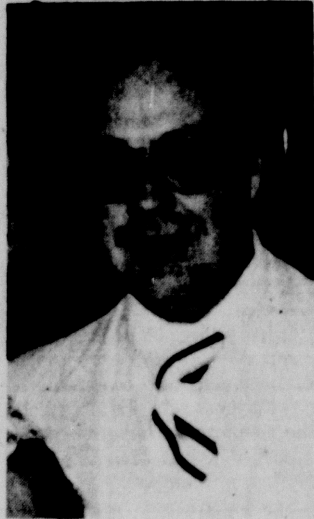

Buerger, referring to Dennis' bid for the Democratic nomination for state senator, said "the whole state of Missouri needs John Dennis."

Calling Dennis one of the finest policemen he has ever known, Doherty said, "I've never met a more honest policeman in my entire life."

Simmons called him a dynamic man, saying his contribution to area law enforcement will never be excelled.

Brooks said Dennis had never denied one of the highway patrol's requests.

Tornado kills boy, 7

By The Associated Press
Tornadoes raked wide sections of Missouri overnight, killing a 7-year-old boy, injuring numerous persons and causing widespread property damage.

Killed was Clinton Thomas Stratton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Stratton of rural Poplar Bluff. The Strattons and their four other children were treated at a Poplar Bluff hospital for injuries.

Heavy damage was reported in Poplar Bluff in southeast Missouri; at West Plains, 100 miles to the east; at Mountain View, about 20 miles northeast of West Plains; at St. Robert, near the entrance to Ft. Leonard Wood in south-central Missouri, and in the St. Louis suburb of Fenton.

The roof of St. Francis Hospital in Mountain View was ripped off by what authorities said was a tornado. No injuries were reported, but patients were moved to a wing of the hospital that suffered the least damage, a hospital spokesman said.

A nearby home housing the sisters who serve the hospital also was damaged heavily.

A drive-in restaurant and an insurance agency were destroyed, and several homes were damaged in Mountain View.

Authorities said three separate storm cells hit West Plains. Two were classed as tornadoes, the third heavy winds.

At least four persons were injured in the West Plains storm. The north and west sections of the town of 7,000 were hardest hit.

Suffering major damage at West Plains were the Continental Trailways station, a printing shop, bowling alley, glass company, Chevrolet dealership, a cafe, farm implement store, the country club, some 20 mobile homes and a trailer occupied by the Missouri Highway Patrol. Several homes suffered major damage. Some 15 airplanes at the town's airport were also damaged, some heavily.

In Poplar Bluff, Stratton, 47, and his wife, Shirley, 39, were most seriously injured. A son, Russell, 16, told authorities his father, a well-known contractor in the community, had just awakened the two younger brothers to warn of the approaching storm and was trying to awaken the rest of the family when the storm hit.

"The first thing I remember was being outside," the teenager recalled. "It threw me through the wall."

Russell, who was not injured, got the rest of the family together and into a truck. Clinton, who was in his bedroom with another brother, Jessie, 13, was buried in the rubble of the new four-bedroom home the Strattons were just completing.

The other Stratton children who were less seriously injured were Rhonda, age 7 months and Donna, 18.

Two other persons were injured when the storm swept a mobile home park at the north edge of Poplar Bluff. Several mobile homes were heavily damaged.

Considerable damage was reported to the Big-K Discount Store, with one wall blown out and merchandise scattered 200 yards up a hillside.

The storm that hit Poplar Bluff touched down first at Puxico, some 20 miles away. The storm overturned a mobile home, injuring Bert McWaters, 58, of rural Puxico. His wife escaped injury.

In the Fenton area, a dairy, a printing company and other buildings in an industrial area were heavily damaged.

A tornado also hit St. Robert, near the main gate of Ft. Leonard Wood, damaging a car dealership and a bowling alley.

SEC is investigating alleged PSC slush fund

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Public Service Co.'s operation of an alleged political slush fund has prompted an investigation by the federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

The SEC inquiry, disclosed by the Missouri Public Service Commission Friday, has apparently also indirectly stalled the company's plans to sell 300,000 shares of stock valued at $3.7 million and forced normally public records at the state commission to be kept temporarily confidential.

The federal probe of the Western Missouri Good Government Club concerns the possibility that the Raytown utility failed to fully disclose the organization's operations. PSC Chairman A. Robert Pierce said the investigation, which has been underway for more than a month, is expected to be completed in two weeks.

The club, composed of the company's management level employees, allegedly obtained funds for political contributions equal to the same amount of "merit" raises the employees received upon joining it.

The operations of the political club were uncovered by the PSC last year during a routine audit of the company, which serves an estimated 130,000 gas and electric customers in western Missouri.

The attorney general's office accused the company of a violation of the Missouri Corrupt Practices Act, which forbids political contributions by corporations. But an agreement was reached between the attorney general and the utility under which it admitted no wrongdoing but agreed to pay a state Supreme Court ordered fine of $28,000.

Under the PSC's description of the club's operations, 45 company supervisors had been given 1 per cent merit raises right after joining the club and then agreed to have 1 per cent of their salaries deducted as club dues.

Leland Curtis, chief attorney for the state commission, said his office had turned over to the SEC financial records of the Western Missouri Good Government Club last month at the federal agency's request.

Those records, gathered during the PSC's own investigation into the club, included information on the employee raises and dues and the political candidates who received contributions from the club, which was first established in 1969.

Curtis said the company has agreed to revoke all the employee pay hikes linked to club contributions since that time to avoid the issue arising in succeeding matters before the PSC.

Show-Me willing to refund

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The attorney for a rural Missouri electric utility has said his firm would pay interest on refunds of any overcharges resulting from use of controversial automatic rate hikes if the procedure is continued.

Eugene Andercek, representing the Show-Me Power Corp., told the Missouri Public Service Commission Friday that if the widely-criticized fuel adjustment clause is continued Show-Me would agree to refund any overcharges with interest.

"I don't want to lose this fuel clause," Andercek said. "The public needs reassurance on this that there would be some kind of penalty for overcharges."

Andercek's comments came during the final day of general hearings on whether electric utilities should be permitted to continue passing soaring fuel costs onto residential customers beyond April 15.

The PSC, however, has scheduled two days of hearings late next week to consider a complaint against the Kansas City Power and Light Co. that it allegedly improperly charged fuel adjustment increases resulting in customer overcharges of more than $2 million last year.

Other attorneys at Friday's session indicated in response to Andercek's proposal that the commission has no authority to require repayment of fuel adjustment overcharges with interest. They contended the PSC has no legal authority to levy penalties against utilities, but can only go to court for that purpose.

Commissioner Stephen Jones said some regular utility rate schedules already contain provisions for interest on overcharges. But he said he would have to check with the PSC's legal section to see if interest payments could be made a requirement in any approved fuel adjustment clause.

Alberta Slavin, president of the Utilities Consumer Council of Missouri, reiterated her objections to continuation of the practice. They were similar to those she raised when the commission authorized the procedure on an experimental basis two years ago.

Reportedly, Clark was standing in a hallway between the service station and restaurant area when he fired a Simmons said Fitzgibbons told him at the hospital that he did not know who shot him and was evasive in answering questions.

FREEDOM AND FOOD

A meat industry spokesman has noted, "... the wildly fluctuating prices and intermittent periods of bulging supplies and shortages which have plagued both the (meat) industry and the consumer ..." may be traced to numerous sources. Inflation, unfavorable weather, price controls and the energy crisis have all taken their toll. Then there is the unprecedented world demand. Interestingly enough, this demand can also point the way to stabilization of meat supplies and prices

through the smooth functioning of the law of supply and demand.

The wisdom of allowing the natural forces of the marketplace to operate unencumbered

by governmental price freezes and stringent regulations is clearer now than ever before.

According to Newsweek magazine, more and more people throughout the world are expressing a desire for meat as the major source of protein in their diet, thus setting into motion the law of supply and demand. Prices tend to rise with demand. These higher prices work as an incentive to farmers and ranchers to invest in larger herds and expand production facilities. This, in turn, increases supplies and eventually leads to a lowering of prices.

Through the dynamics of the free, incentive-producing marketplace, the United States has become the world's greatest food producers. The survival of future generations depends, to a large degree, upon the functioning of that free market.

XXX

RECORD SHOW...

A critical electric power shortage is now almost as certain as night following day, due to limitations on the utilization of low-sulfur coal in the West and excessively stringent standards of the Clean

Air Act.

A major electric power company system which serves some 5.75 million people is making every attempt to get the message across that more coal must be available and that unworkable provisions of the Clean Air Act must be modified.

These efforts are called "self-serving" by some critics. In answer, the chief executive officer of the company declares,

"It is a message that we believe it is our duty to convey to the widest possible public. It represents implementation of our policy to do all that we possibly can to assure an adequate supply of electric power for the 5.75 million people who look to us to provide it ...

when the acute power shortages develop ... we have the record to be very clear that we had seen the shortages coming, warned against them and told the country how they could have been avoided." With respect to clean-air standards, the electric industry asks that greater flexibility be permitted in meeting the standards, not that the standards be lowered.

As regard to coal, the company executive states, "... if the federal government is not satisfied that private industry can surface mine and then restore the land the way it should, if it has no confidence in industry's acceptance of environmental responsibility, then let the federal government mine the coal, reclaim the land as it believes it should be done, include in the price of the coal whatever the reclamation costs may be and allocate the sale of the coal on the basis of need in the light of environmental considerations."

If a power shortage materializes, a large part of the fault will lie on the shoulders of those critics who do not project power needs and realistically evaluate technical capability. Such critics fail rather than further the public interest.

One of the great issues of the 1960s was that of "cheap foreign steel" versus the high-priced American product.

Enjoying labor costs far below those of their American competitors and, especially in the case of Japan and West Germany, benefiting from modernized facilities built from the ground up after the devastation of World War II, foreign steelmakers began undercutting the American market both at home and abroad.

At the same time as domestic producers argued for higher tariffs and tougher "anti-dumping" legislation to stem the tide of cheap foreign steel, they were criticized for having let obsolescence overtake the industry. The solution, it was said, lay in out-innovating the foreigners rather than trying to block imports with tariff barriers which in the long run would only be turned against American products.

Also in the long run, it was predicted, steadily rising standards of living among foreign workers would eventually narrow the labor-cost gap.

Something like this seems to have come true in recent months.

While it is a complex situation and the worldwide business slump has much to do with it, imports of foreign steel in the first 10 months of 1975 were 18 per cent below those of the same period in 1974.

Thanks not only to the predicted higher wages for foreign steelworkers but also to steep boosts in the prices of fuel and scrap metal, the operating costs of steelmakers in Japan, Europe and the United States are now pretty much in the same range.

Japan's steelmaking costs are put at $270 a ton and those of Europe at approximately $290 a ton. The comparable figure for the U.S. industry is $275 to $280 a ton.

"Both European and Japanese competitors have experienced sharply increased costs for labor, raw materials and energy which have, in conjunction with the double devaluation of the dollar, raised the cost per ton of foreign devaluation of the dollar, raised the cost per ton of foreign steel delivered to about the same levels as American steel," says Thomas Graham, president of Jones & Laughlin, as quoted in the Wall Street Journal.

"The era of cheap foreign steel," he adds, "has gone the way of cheap foreign oil, never to return."

40 YEARS AGO

The experience of a businessman at Coon Rapids, Iowa, who lost $108.40 on fattening a calf given to him, in an effort to prove a feeder could make money on cattle, was reminiscent of an incident at Paris forty or so years ago.

Hogs had gone down to 3c per pound in the early 1930 Depression Days, and at the Community Sale in Paris there were no bids on 40 and 50 pound shoats. The owner finally offered to give them away, and found only one taker—Brownie Richards, then a Paris barber.

Brownie put the pig in the back yard, fed it mostly slop and table waste, and that fall when he butchered it, swore he still lost money.

The Iowa man had about the same experience.

THE HOUSEPLANT

EXPLOSION

From National Geographic News Services

Is man's best friend now the houseplant? It doesn't bark, leave hair on the sofa, rip up furniture, howl in the night, rub against an unwilling leg or want to have its ears scratched.

A houseplant can't fetch the newspaper off the front lawn or play with a ball of yarn. But if population proves popularity, houseplants have it all over dogs and cats. That's one idea that comes from the nation's sudden obsession with leafy greenery, a craze that turned 1975 into the Year of the Houseplant, and 1976 probably even more so.

In 1974 Americans bought $111,000,000 worth of houseplants, according to the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists. That's an increase of 64 per cent over the year before, continuing a green population explosion that started in 1970. Henry M. Cathy of the Department of Agriculture sees at least three causes of this greening of America: disgust with today's plastic world; a yen to get back to nature, satisfying an inborn ruralness in almost everyone, and hanging baskets. He says America's houseplant hiatus in the first half of the century coincided with the building of houses with windowsills too narrow for setting pots on. Then the hanging basket was rediscovered and houseplants again could have a place in the sun.

Once houseplants seemed only companions to maiden aunts in Victorian parlors. There were cascades of ferns, spear-thrusters of mother-in-law's tongue and dusty rubber plants. Now even the biggest aspidistra in the world would be upstaged by the profusion of plants, both exotic and ordinary, taking over offices, shops and stores, as well as living rooms and kitchens.

"Today you can bring home New Guinea," says an amazed botanist, ticking off dozens of tropical plants sold in neighborhood supermarkets and even liquor stores. New Leafs, Green Thumbs, Gay Blades,

Good Earths and other similarly named plant boutiques—so called to differentiate them from florists also selling cut flowers—are mushrooming everywhere. Some plant stores offer hospitalization for sick philodendrons and the like, and at least one girl with a sympathetic potted plant makes house calls.

Many believe the best way to bring a healthy flush of green to a favorite plant is to speak kindly to it, maybe sing a little, and shield it from thoughts of violence and from dogs. Some swear there's nothing like a bath of gin to kill mealy bugs, or clouds of heavy cigar smoke to wipe out a white fly infestation.

HOW TO FAIL IN

BUSINESS IN OUR TOWN

The recent closing of one fairly large business in Paris after operating here for less than 18 months provides one of the most outstanding yardsticks in years of how to fail in Paris, or any other small town.

It was not the fault of the local manager, who believed the business should do certain things and wanted to do them.

It was the fault of its owners and management, based in another distant state.

These owners and out-of-state managers, among other things: Participated in no community programs, contributed nothing to them, had none of its personnel active in community, civic or other organizations, nor in church or club work, refused to advertise their merchandise and tell the 10,000 buyers in the area what they had to offer and the prices of those offerings, provided nothing for the community except a retail outlet and payment of rent to a local owner, sent most of its money intake out of the town and out of the state.

In short, it was just here.

Period.

It has happened before, it can happen again, if the management and ownership of any business remains aloof from the community, fails to become a part of it, fails to tell its story to Monroe Countians.

Such businesses are not an asset to this or any other community and when they leave, there are no regrets.

CONGRESS SENDS

A MESSAGE

STILL SMARTING under the criticism of taxpayers who have been complaining about yet another increase in the cost of postage stamps, the House has voted to put the U.S. Postal Service back under its own thumb.

How serious the House was about this action remains to be seen. The chairman of the House postal service subcommittee hastily pulled the measure which was under consideration off the floor. He is going to try to get the members to reconsider their action next week.

But the vote Monday certainly was resounding—267 to 123.

It would seem to indicate that Congress is in a mood to tighten the reins on the Postal Service, even if it relies on some aspects of what it approved this week.

As Rep. Bill Alexander (D-Ark.) said of his amendment to subject the Postal Service to annual budget approval, it "simply tells the Postal Service that they have failed."

The bill which the House was considering and which Alexander amended would increase the federal government's annual postal subsidy from its present $920 million to $2.6 billion. That's a sizable leap, especially when Congress is being battered at every turn to keep spending within reasonable limits.

The record of the new Postal Service over the four years it has existed has been one of constantly rising deficits. It started off well by cutting its first year deficit of $175 million to only $13 million in 1973. But by 1974 the deficit was up to $438 million and in the year that ended June 30 it showed a deficit of $669 million.

In its defense, it must be said the service has faced some horrendous problems, too. The flow of mail has increased tremendously. And the nation has been beset by sharp inflation. In addition, the service has found itself with some really serious private competition.

But great promises were made when the reorganization of the old Post Office operation was demanded. And those promises, for whatever reasons, have not been kept.

So it is not surprising that Congress has decided to "send a message" to the Postal Service's plush leased offices in L'Enfant Plaza.

With the Postal Service what it is these days, many members of Congress apparently didn't trust the mails to get that message through.

SUPERMICE?

EXTERMINATORS in the Twin Cities area of Minnesota are being overrun by mice.

One three-block area in St. Paul alone is estimated to have a mouse population of between 5,000 and 10,000, and the exterminators say the problem is going to get much worse before it gets better.

The reason they expect it to get worse is that they fear the area has developed what they called "a supermouse." The rodents no longer are fazed by the anticoagulants which are the most common mouse poisons now in use. A supervisor for population management with the Minnesota Fish and Wildlife Service says he has captured some of the mice and fed them the poison-soaked grain for a month, and the mice grew fat on it.

One theory is that frequent rains in the area have caused lush growth of foliage on which the mice feed. The foliage contains lots of vitamin K which thickens the blood and is a deterrent to the anticoagulants.

"I don't know what we're going to do," says the president of one exterminating company.

The thing to do, obviously, is find someone who has built a better mouse trap and beat a path to his door.

Failing that, how about feeding the mice some birth control pills?

CONGRESS SENDS A MESSAGE

STILL SMARTING under the criticism of taxpayers who have been complaining about yet another increase in the cost of postage stamps, the House has voted to put the U.S. Postal Service back under its own thumb.

How serious the House was about this action remains to be seen. The chairman of the House postal service subcommittee hastily pulled the measure which was under consideration off the floor. He is going to try to get the members to reconsider their action next week.

But the vote Monday certainly was resounding—267 to 123.

It would seem to indicate that Congress is in a mood to tighten the reins on the Postal Service, even if it entails on some aspects of what it approved this week.

As Rep. Bill Alexander (D-Ark.) said of his amendment to subject the Postal Service to annual budget approval, it "simply tells the Postal Service that they have failed."

The bill which the House was considering and which Alexander amended would increase the federal government's annual postal subsidy from its present $920 million to $2.6 billion. That's a sizable leap, especially when Congress is being battered at every turn to keep spending within reasonable limits.

The record of the new Postal Service over the four years it has existed has been one of constantly rising deficits. It started off well by cutting its first year deficit of $175 million to only $13 million in 1973. But by 1974 the deficit was up to $438 million and in the year that ended June 30 it showed a deficit of $869 million.

In its defense, it must be said the service has faced some horrendous problems, too. The flow of mail has increased tremendously. And the nation has been beset by sharp inflation. In addition, the service has found itself with some really serious private competition.

But great promises were made when the reorganization of the old Post Office operation was demanded. And those promises, for whatever reasons, have not been kept.

So it is not surprising that Congress has decided to "send a message" to the Postal Service's plush leased offices in L'Enfant Plaza.

With the Postal Service what it is these days, many members of Congress apparently didn't trust the mails to get that message through.

SUPERMICE?

EXTERMINATORS in the Twin Cities area of Minnesota are being overrun by mice.

One three-block area in St. Paul alone is estimated to have a mouse population of between 5,000 and 10,000, and the exterminators say the problem is going to get much worse before it gets better.

The reason they expect it to get worse is that they fear the area has developed what they call "a supermouse." The rodents no longer are feared by the anticoagulants which are the most common mouse poisons now in use. A supervisor for population management with the Minnesota Fish and Wildlife Service says he has captured some of the mice and fed them the poison-soaked grain for a month, and the mice grew fat on it.

One theory is that frequent rains in the area have caused lush growth of foliage on which the mice feed. The foliage contains lots of vitamin K which thickens the blood and is a deterrent to the anticoagulants.

"I don't know what we're going to do," says the president of one exterminating company.

The thing to do, obviously, is find someone who has built a better mouse trap and beat a path to his door.

Failing that, how about feeding the mice some birth control pills?

In our parish church during a procession a girl choir member caught her heel in a grating. Rather than delay the ceremony, she marched on minus a shoe. A chivalrous male singer following tried to pick up the shoe, but it was stuck in the grating, so he picked up the whole lot and proceeded on to the vestibule. The celebrant promptly fell into the hole.

A fisherman who had been nabbed by a game warden for exceeding his limit on black bass was hauled into the local county courthouse, where he quickly admitted his guilt. "That'll be ten dollars per fish and court costs," pronounced the judge.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Scop the Heavyweight: Labor Welding massive political machine: Movies, humorist, regional rallies, etc., etc.

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. --Gentle, 87-year-old James Aloysius Farley is of sufficient charity to forgive my questioning of his prediction that Hubert Humphrey will grab the next Democratic presidential nomination. Jim rarely is wrong except on presidential prognostications.

Here among labor's high command, Hubert doesn't show that much strength. Here Sen. Henry (Scop) Jackson appears to be stonewalling his gaggle of rivals. He's been feted by powerful national union chiefs (14 of them now support him). And the talk is strong deep inside labor of a Jackson-Carey ticket (Hugh Carey, governor of New York).

Scop Jackson after all has voted more loyally pro-labor in his 23-year senatorial career than any other legislator—147 right and just four wrong, according to AFL-CIO standards of legislative fidelity.

This isn't just idle corridor-lobby-bar gossip. No "gossip" where the AFL-CIO Executive Council and its Committee on Political Education (COPE) Operating Committee gather for closed door sessions ever is "idle." Like Caesar's centurions preparing for invasions, here organized labor has truly forged weapons for political assaults across every state border, and in virtually all precincts in the land.

There just isn't anything like it anywhere in the free world. There is, for example, the Operating Committee which conferred here in well secluded sessions for two days.

Its leader, Al Barkan, who is George Meany's chief political surrogate, has it down to a science. He has created subcommittees to organize and bring out the vote among youth, senior citizens, Latinos and American Indians, blacks and in all "marginal districts." Martinal, that is, for the friends of labor who won in tight contests for either house.

Thus there's far more than presidential politics discussed—or the COPE $2 per member drive among 14.5 million AFL-CIO unionists, which will bring in millions of dollars.

And, Barkan has scheduled 10 COPE area conferences. These will cover every state from Florida to Hawaii. They start in Atlanta March 3, as "kickoff meetings" for the '76 campaign. Barkan will wind them up on April 9 in Seattle.

Since all unions are welcome, and men and women to not live by politics alone, the brothers and sisters will be entertained by "humorist and political satirist" John Henry Faulk. And there will be motion pictures—films on the key issues of 1976 patted my arm. "That's all right," she told me reassuringly. "You deserve thoughtfully. "You deserve me."

BOSTON SOLAR EXPERIMENT

Boston is not known as a sunshine city. This is not said with derogatory intent, but merely by way of noting that Boston has its share of cloudy days. That is relevant to the fact that the Massachusetts Electric Co., is planning to provide a few customers with solar heating devices to heat water in their homes.

The program is experimental, as the utility's president noted: "We want to know how efficient solar energy is as a water heater, how much money it will save customers, and if the savings will offset the cost of equipment." To this end the firm will install solar heating units in the homes of 100 customers at a fraction of their cost, which is now estimated at from $1,000 to $1,600.

There is little doubt as to the effectiveness of such units—though cost recovery is another matter—in areas such as the Southwest where there is bright sunshine most days the year round. The jackpot question is how well the units will function in a New England city.

Massachusetts Electric figures that the units will cut in half the cost of operating a home hot water system. During summer the saving is expected to be as high as 75 per cent; in the cloudy winter season 25 to 30 per cent. Clearly, this is a worthwhile reduction. That, coupled with the potential saving in electric energy, will generate wide interest in the Boston experiment.—The Daily Dunell Democrat, Kennett, Mo.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

The Lobby Racket with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— Thirty years ago, Congress passed a law that was intended to require all lobbyists to register and to give yearly reports of their spending.

These regulations are so full of loopholes, however, that they are more of a tennis racket than a club over the heads of the lobbyists.

Not even the ITT and milk lobbying scandals have brought a real crackdown on lobbyists. They still operate in the shadows, guiding corporations and unions alike through the trackless wastes of government.

No one really doubts that lobbyists continue to buy favors, arrange deals and influence public policy behind the scenes.

Yet in the post-Watergate era, only 12 federal agencies have instituted lobbying control measures. Another 79 agencies have adopted no reforms at all.

These are the findings of the Library of Congress, which has conducted a confidential study. Lobbyists literally swarm over Capitol Hill, hobnob with the military brass at the Pentagon and pull strings inside the White House. Yet except for the tennis racket, these great government centers have no effective rules to keep the lobbyists in line.

The people at the White House seemed offended at the mere suggestion that they regulate and restrict the special pleaders. In answer to the Library's inquiry about lobbying controls, then-presidential counsel Phillip Areeda responded stiffly:

"This office has no such proceedings and neither has nor contemplates any such regulation."

Three agencies—the National Security Council, Overseas Private Investment Corporation and Health, Education and Welfare Department—completely ignored the Library's request for information.

Even the 12 agencies that have adopted lobbying controls merely require their employees now to keep logs of their contacts with lobbyists. This reduces the chances for corruption, yet no one has been disciplined in the 12 agencies for improper dealings.

Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., who requested the Library study, regards the lobbying laws as wholly inadequate. The most effective operators don't register as lobbyists, don't call themselves lobbyists and no longer hang around the Capitol lobbies. These what-chamacallits keep above the hurly-burly tread with a soft foot and deal on the inside.

UNTOLD STORY: Buried in the secret files of the National Security Agency is the story of how the agency's top brass used threats to block the production of a low-cost code machine.

The developer of the device, Victor Poor, became convinced that the NSA might firebomb his factory to stop him. Others claimed that NSA merely threatened to take injunctive action in court.

Poor was vice president of a small Frederick, Md., electronics firm in the 1960s. He developed a cheap, teletype-like code machine, which the firm hoped to sell to banks and businesses operating in international commerce.

The machine, costing less than $5,000 apiece, would have permitted these firms to send confidential messages in a nearly unbreakable code.

In those days, NSA was monitoring transoceanic messages in violation of the law. The NSA brass got wind of Poor's device, which they feared would disrupt their eavesdropping.

So out of the blue, the small Frederick firm received a warning call from NSA. This failed to deter the production plans, so the firm's president, John Houston, and attorney, Marx Leva, were summoned to a meeting at NSA's headquarters in Ft. Meade, Md.

Poor has stated on a tape recording that he was told the NSA brass threatened "extra-legal" action if the firm went ahead with the production.

"We don't want you to build it," the NSA officials allegedly warned. "If you do, you're going to get in a pile of trouble."

Poor understood the warning to mean that the factory might be destroyed by arson unless the development of the code machine was stopped. "

New frontier opens up to women

Earline Motton, 35, of 211 Fuchs St., is the first woman hired to work in the bakery section, previously a male domain, at Hart's Bakery. Her work consists of loading large pans of bakery products into ovens eight hours a day. She started her new job as oven loader, considered by many as taxing because of the constant movement it requires, last Saturday.

A spokesman for Hart's Bakery explained the change of attitude this way. "Before, the work was considered too heavy for women but equal rights has opened this up. We are going to see if the ladies can handle the work. Hiring women is happening in every industry."

Bottled courage can be embarrassing

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I have heard convincing arguments on both sides. We don't know what to believe. You are going to settle it.

Question: When people are under the influence of alcohol (not cockeyed drunk, just moderately plastered) do they reveal their hidden feelings? Or do they say and do things they don't mean? Also, what about booze and sex? Does liquor help get a person in the mood?

I'm not saying this very well but I hope you dig me. Thanks for your time. — John Barleycorn — Saint Or Sinner?

Dear John: Alcohol removes the inhibitions. It loosens the tongue. Individuals who have had too much to drink often say what is on their minds — things they wouldn't have the nerve to say sober. The same goes for behavior.

As for booze and sex, a drink or two can cause a person to behave in a less restrained or controlled manner, especially women. As for men, the same holds true — to a point. But often a male who leans on "bottled courage" to become sexually aggressive finds to his dismay (and embarrassment) that he cannot function at all. That Ogden Nash gem, "Candy's dandy but liquor is quicker," does not always prove out.

Dear Ann Landers: I love reading your column but never believed I'd ever be writing to you. Well here I am, like so many others.

Three of us gals are good friends. Amy and I study a lot and work hard. Lorna goes off and is always behind in her assignments. The three of us sit near each other in most of our classes.

During tests, Goof-Off passes notes to everyone around her asking for help with the answers. We hate to turn her down for fear she might flunk. Honestly, Ann, she doesn't know anything — never cracks a book. The last test was a shocker. Goof-Off got a better grade than we did.

Should we write an unsigned note to the teacher and tip her off? The cheater is being unfair to everyone in the class who studies. Especially us. — G and R

Dear Grrrrrrrr: Peopled who help cheaters cheat are also cheaters. Don't snitch. Just tell Lorna from now on she's on her own. If she tries to slip you a note, don't take it. End of problem.

Dear Ann Landers: Please find enclosed the chain letter that arrived yesterday. It is very annoying to receive these darned things in the mail because I'm a little superstitious. But I have no time (or money) to spend on foolishness. This is the third chain letter I've received from the same person, and I have broken the chain every time.

Someone told me these things are illegal. Are they? I don't want to get anyone in trouble but I sure wish this certain party would take my name off her list. What can I do without hurting her feelings? — Simmering In South Dakota

Dear Simmering: Return the last chain letter to your friend and tell her any chain letter soliciting funds is not mailable under federal law.

Karen Horton

New Madrid senior named curator scholar

NEW MADRID—Karen Horton, a New Madrid High School senior, has been named a University of Missouri Curators Freshman Scholar, Glenn Dyke, unit administrator, announced recently.

Miss Horton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Horton, 802 Main St.

The award is based upon the excellent academic achievement during three years of high school work already completed. The recipient may choose to attend any one of the University's four campuses — Columbia, Kansas City, Rolla or St. Louis — with the full amount of the incidental fee for the school year being waived during the freshman year.

The award also may be renewed for additional undergraduate years if the scholar's academic cumulated grade point average remains in the top five per cent of her class, when enrolled full time.

Miss Horton was nominated for the award by the high school based on the following criteria:

Nominee must rank in the top three per cent of the class at the end of the sixth semester of high school work and must have scored in the 90th percentile or above on one of the several nationally recognized college aptitude tests. Each high school in Missouri is allowed to nominate one scholar from each 100 or fraction of 100 graduating seniors for the current school year.

The Curators Scholars Program is designed to recognize scholarly achievement accomplished at Missouri high schools and to encourage these persons to continue their education at the university level.

That Ogden Nash gem, "Candy's dandy but liquor is quicker," does not always prove out.

Dear Ann Landers: I love reading your column but never believed I'd ever be writing to you. Well here I am, like so many others.

Three of us gals are good friends. Amy and I study a lot and work hard. Lorna goes off and is always behind in her assignments. The three of us sit near each other in most of our classes.

During tests, Goof-Off passes notes to everyone around her asking for help with the answers. We hate to turn her down for fear she might flunk. Honestly, Ann, she doesn't know anything—never cracks a book. The last test was a shocker. Goof-Off got a better grade than we did.

Should we write an unsigned note to the teacher and tip her off? The cheater is being unfair to everyone in the class who studies. Especially us. -- G And R

Dear Grrrrrrrr: People who help cheaters cheat are also cheaters. Don't snitch. Just tell Lorna from now on she's on her own. If she tries to slip you a note, don't take it. End of problem.

Dear Ann Landers: Please find enclosed the chain letter that arrived yesterday. It is very annoying to receive these darned things in the mail because I'm a little superstitious. But I have no time (or money) to spend on foolishness. This is the third chain letter I've received from the same person, and I have broken the chain every time.

Someone told me these things are illegal. Are they? I don't want to get anyone in trouble but I sure wish this certain party would take my name off her list. What can I do without hurting her feelings? -- Simmering In South Dakota

Dear Simmering: Return the last chain letter to your friend and tell her any chain letter soliciting funds is not mailable under federal law.

Super Dog effort nets win

By DALE FORBIS

"I don't know if I'll make it," said the Bulldog coach. "I've been sick the last two days."

Buddy Spears got just what the doctor ordered from his team, a surprisingly easy 75-58 romp over the Kelly Hawks in the SHS fieldhouse. A throng in excess of three thousand set up a roar at the opening tipoff and kept it up all game. What that did to Sikeston's feverish coach isn't known, but it is significant that the usually communicative Spears called just two timeouts all night. The kids seemed to be doing okay without any outside help.

A timeout is a small thing when viewed against the perspective of a total game, but Sikeston's first timeout proved to be very instrumental in the final outcome. Although the Dogs had scored the game's first bucket, the hustling Hawks raced to an 8-4 edge. Hold it, Spears said, and gathered his troops around him to break Kelly's momentum. Back out on the court after the break, the hosts scored six points in a row and were never headed the rest of the way.

Sikeston led 16-13 after the first period, built the margin to 24-18, gave up a Kelly basket, then reeled off 13 unanswered points. Trailing 37-20, the Hawks never threatened the rest of the way. The score was 41-29 at half and again the Bulldogs ran off a string of consecutive scores, seven points to be exact, for a 48-29 edge. A couple of minutes after the reserves took the floor in the fourth period, the lead was its largest at 26 points, 70-44.

Normally the biggest Bulldogs, 6-foot-4 Marc Eaves and 6-foot-6 Paul Gilbow, carry the offensive load for Sikeston. But, Eaves was busy blocking shots (five) and Gilbow was grabbing 13 rebounds to lead the Dogs to a 45-30 edge on the boards, so the scoring task fell to Harold Dockins and Alonzo Harris.

Dockins marked up 20 points for the second game in a row, controlling the ball on offense, stealing it on defense and embarrassing Kelly defenders with his slithering moves. Harris scored 14 points in the first half, as did Dockins, and finished with 19 points. The 6-foot-3 junior matched Eaves with eight rebounds and helped Sikeston play its most impressive defensive game in recent weeks.

Eaves and Gilbow weren't just standing around. Taking only nine floor shots, Eaves still reached double figures with 12 and was intimidating on defense, out-jumping everyone in site, slapping shots into the crowd and, on two occasions, even rebounding missed Sikeston free throws and converting them into points.

Gilbow, the underclassman, wasn't shooting well but still finished with 11 points.

still finished with 11 points.

"Paul really did a job on the boards, didn't he?" commented Spears after the game.

And, how does a runaway win over the state's 10th-ranked AA quintet affect a sick coach?

"I'll be okay now."

If his squad continues to play as well as it has in the recent four-game winning streak, he'll probably be even better than that. The win boosted Sikeston's record to 17-5 and, with three games next week to conclude the regular season, not to mention the regional tournament, Sikeston is in good position for its first 20-win season since 1968-69.

Kelly was playing without the services of senior guard Ronnie Schlosser, who was injured earlier in the week against Ilmo-Scott City. The senior 6-footer would have helped a Kelly floor game that produced 26 turnovers, but it's highly unlikely that he could have helped the rebounding effort against the more physical Bulldogs. And, nobody could have done much about the way Dockins and Harris were scoring.

"Coach, the way you played tonight you would've beaten anybody, even Kennett," congratulated a passing fan.

"I don't know about that," said Spears, "But we sure did play well."

Amen.

WARDELL— The North Pemiscot Mustangs ran up a 30-14 first period advantage over the Clarkton Reindeer here Friday night and then decided to take a long rest and had to battle back in the fourth period to win 78-72.

Clarkton ripped the Mustangs defense for 25 points in the second period while the dazed Mustangs were scoring only eight.

The generous Mustangs allowed the Reindeer to rally to tie the score at 56-56 after three quarters of play before starting to play again in the last eight minutes.

Don Robinson had his best game of the season for North Pemiscot with 31 points. Jerry Stewart scored 21. Ray Norris scored only two points for the Mustangs.

Braves have trouble with Richland 78-75

ESSEX— James Williams has been absent from the Scott Central lineup for three games and coach Ronnie Cookson's Braves have suffered severely. Risco almost beat them and University High had them beaten until a last quarter burst ruined their upset bid. Richland held a lead at the half but couldn't take advantage of the situation and the state's number two-ranked 1-A team edged the Rebels 78-75 here Friday night.

Without the fine playmaker the Braves look like a lost team as they can't seem to get their offensive patterns working. Richland did a good job of rebounding their missed shots and taking the ball down the court.

In the first half it was Otto Porter against the entire Rebel team for the most part as the area's leading scorer was the only Brave with any consistency in shooting at all as he was on target from his favorite spot in the left corner.

Richland jumped to a quick lead and maintained a nine point advantage early in the second period but Scott Central managed to cut the deficit to three at one time but Richland held a seven point lead at the half, 40-33.

Jim Clay and Sylvester Patterson carried the bulk of the offensive load in the first half for Richland. The Rebels defense suffered in the first half against the Scott Central fastbreak as the Braves continued to burn their opponent with the football passes and getting several baskets before the Rebels could get back.

It was homecoming for the Rebels and everything looked very good until the third period rolled around.

Ricky Thomas caught fire for the Braves in the quarter and the Braves' defense took charge of the game to propel the Daily Standard's top team to a 25-15 advantage to erase the seven point deficit and forge ahead by three where they managed to stay until the final buzzer pulling out yet another squeaker for the third straight time.

Otto Porter flipped in 34 points in the game to continue to hold onto his 30 point average for the season and remain the district's top scorer and Thomas chipped in with 20. Patterson scored 28 for Richland and Clay followed with 18.

Bluejays defeat Zizzers

CHARLESTON— Coach Mitch Haskins has been trying to put some scoring in his offense the past few games and Friday night the Bluejays received some unexpected scoring from guard Michael Dean to help lift the home team past West Plains 80-70.

Dean hasn't been shooting much this season and the guard is averaging less than 10 points per game but Haskins gave him the green light here tonight and the young sophomore flipped in 16 points in the game, all on fieldgoals from the outside.

Charleston's other guard, Michael Smith has been in a shooting slump lately but came through with 18 points as coach Haskins had encouraged the junior guard to take more shots. Smith had been the teams second leading scorer the first half of the season.

Charleston started the game running against the Zizzers and built up a 22-15 first period margin but West Plains penetrated the usually tough Charleston defense for 23 points in the second period but Charleston was able to score 24 of their own to hold a 46-38 halftime lead.

The Bluejays defense took control of the game in the second half and the western visitors were unable to get any closer as the home team built up an 18 point lead in the fourth period.

Ricky Frazier scored 20 to lead Charleston and Tomas Turner led West Plains with 24.

The Bluejays will get another chance to see if they are good enough to beat Cairo or if the Pilots are really that good as the two teams battle Saturday night in Charleston.

Charleston won the JV game 61-59 in overtime.

Kennett gets tie for league crown with 61-56 win

KENNETT— The Kennett Indians gained a tie for the championship of the Semo Basketball Conference Friday night as they downed the Dexter Bearcats 61-56 at Kennett. The Indians will share the league crown with the Charleston Bluejays, who defeated Poplar Bluff 58-53 in overtime Tuesday night to clinch the tie for their team. Both clubs are 6-1 in the conference.

Kennett outscored the Bearcats in only one period out of the four, but that big advantage in the second quarter was enough to do the Bearcats in. Dexter had moved to a 14-11 first quarter lead, shrugging off their image of being able to play well against the good teams on their home court. But disaster struck the Bearcats in the second period, when the Indians outscored Dexter 20-10 and took a 31-24 halftime lead.

Dexter trimmed two points off the Kennett lead in the third quarter, but Kennett managed to hang on in the fourth quarter, which saw both clubs throw in 16.

Robert Roundtree and Pat Edwards put on a two-man scoring show for the home crowd. Roundtree fired in 22 from his front-line position, while Edwards, a guard, threw home 20 more.

For Dexter, junior guard Greg Miller led the way with 18, while 6-4 Mark Guethle added 14 and Mike Williams contributed 12.

"School wouldn't be school if the school house wasn't in Bell City."

"Bell City School has been here since 1932 and I'm sure it's survived many ordeals, but none could have been as serious as what we are faced with now."

"Don't you think we should pay our taxes here, rather than somewhere else? Don't you see, it would be a mess?"

"Schools are really the only thing that keeps a city together financially and socially."

"Bell City students have accomplished a lot because the classes aren't very large and the teachers can work individually with the pupils."

"Most of the people here won't like the idea of sending a six year old, off on the bus, maybe 10-20 miles away."

"Twenty-five cents isn't a whole lot extra. We would have to pay more at a different school."

"They would probably have to raise taxes, because the other school wouldn't have enough room in their school and have to build on more rooms and buy more books and there would be longer bus routes."

"If we close the school, it would be like closing Bell City."

"We should pay the taxes in our district rather than to other districts."

"I like my school here in Bell City, where it belongs."

"I have urged my parents to come and vote yes."

"I think it is the best school in Southeast Missouri."

"I hope all the people that read this, will help us."

Kennett gets tie for league crown with 61-56 win

KENNETT— The Kennett Indians gained a tie for the championship of the Semo Basketball Conference Friday night as they downed the Dexter Bearcats 61-56 at Kennett. Kennett outscored the Bearcats in only one period out of the four, but that big advantage in the second quarter was enough to do the Bearcats in. Dexter had moved to a 14-11 first quarter lead, struggling off their image of being able to play well against the good teams on their home court. But disaster struck the Bearcats in the second period, when the Indians outscored Dexter 20-10 and took a 31-24 halftime lead.

Dexter trimmed two points off the Kennett lead in the third quarter, but Kennett managed to hang on in the fourth quarter, which saw both clubs throw in 16.

Robert Roundtree and Pat Edwards put on a two-man scoring show for the home crowd. Roundtree fired in 22 from his front-line position, while Edwards, a guard, threw home 20 more.

For Dexter, junior guard Greg Miller led the way with 18, while 6-4 Mark Guethie added 14 and Mike Williams contributed 12.

Braves have trouble with Richland 78-75

ESSEX— James Williams has been absent from the Scott Central lineup for three games and coach Ronnie Cookson's Braves have suffered severely. Risco almost beat them and University High had them beaten until a last quarter burst ruined their upset bid. Richland held a lead at the half but couldn't take advantage of the situation and the state's number two-ranked 1-A team edged the Rebels 78-75 here Friday night.

Without the fine playmaker the Braves look like a lost team as they can't seem to get their offensive patterns working. Richland did a good job of rebounding their missed shots and taking the ball down the court.

In the first half it was Otto Porter against the entire Rebel team for the most part as the area's leading scorer was the only Brave with any consistency in shooting at all as he was on target from his favorite spot in the left corner.

Richland jumped to a quick lead and maintained a nine point advantage early in the second period but Scott Central managed to cut the deficit to three at one time but Richland held a seven point lead at the half, 40-33.

Jim Clay and Sylvester Patterson carried the bulk of the offensive load in the first half for Richland. The Rebels defense suffered in the first half against the Scott Central fastbreak as the Braves continued to burn their opponent with the football passes and getting several baskets before the Rebels could get back.

It was homecoming for the Rebels and everything looked very good until the third period rolled around.

Ricky Thomas caught fire for the Braves in the quarter and the Braves' defense took charge of the game to propel the Daily Standard's top team to a 25-15 advantage to erase the seven point deficit and forge ahead by three where they managed to stay until the final buzzer pulling out yet another squeaker for the third straight time.

Otto Porter flipped in 34 points in the game to continue to hold onto his 30 point average for the season and remain the district's top scorer and Thomas chipped in with 20. Patterson scored 28 for Richland and Clay followed with 18.

Scott Central won the JV game 45-41.

Bluejays defeat Zizzers

CHARLESTON— Coach Mitch Haskins has been trying to put some scoring in his offense the past few games and Friday night the Bluejays received some unexpected scoring from guard Michael Dean to help lift the home team past West Plains 80-70.

Dean hasn't been shooting much this season and the guard is averaging less than 10 points per game but Haskins gave him the green light here tonight and the young sophomore flipped in 16 points in the game, all on fieldgoals from the outside.

Charleston's other guard, Michael Smith has been in a shooting slump lately but came through with 18 points as coach Haskins had encouraged the junior guard to take more shots. Smith had been the teams second leading scorer the first half of the season.

Charleston started the game running against the Zizzers and built up a 22-15 first period margin but West Plains penetrated the usually tough Charleston defense for 23 points in the second period but Charleston was able to score 24 of their own to hold a 46-38 halftime lead.

The Bluejays defense took control of the game in the second half and the western visitors were unable to get any closer as the home team built up an 18 point lead in the fourth period.

Ricky Frazier scored 20 to lead Charleston and Tomas Turner led West Plains with 24.

The Bluejays will get another chance to see if they are good enough to beat Cairo or if the Pilots are really that good as the two teams battle Saturday night in Charleston.

Charleston won the JV game 61-59 in overtime.

Ali remains champion

SAN JAUN (AP) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali tore down Jean-Pierre Coopman with his punches, then tried to build him up with words.

"He's a gentleman . . . he smiled at me every day," said Ali, after knocking out the Belgian challenger with a flurry of punches in the fifth round of their scheduled 15-round heavyweight championship bout Friday night.

Through an interpreter, Coopman said: "It felt like 500 pounds were falling on me and I fell down."

"I'm glad he's not hurt," Ali said of the 29-year-old sculptor, who came to the Caribbean to fight for one of sport's greatest prizes but who was outclassed from the opening bell.

"It may not look like it, but it was a tough fight," Ali insisted.

It certainly didn't look that way to those who watched.

Ali opened the fifth round circling and rifling jarring left jabs into the face of the plodding Coopman. Then, as the round drew to a close, Ali unleashed a rapid-fire series of bombs to Coopman's head and the challenger crumpled in his corner, to be counted out at 2:46 of the round by referee Ismael Quiones Falu.

Ali said he would have ended it in the first if he had been able to. But while the champion didn't end it too early on this occasion, he was in no mood to carry his opponent into the late rounds as he has done on past occasions.

"He's hard to hit. He's a scientific defensive fighter," Ali said of Coopman.

But to ringsiders, it was hard to recall any of Ali's punches that missed.

Coopman also had no offense at all. He couldn't have landed more than two or three punches to Ali's head and was ineffectual to the champion's body as well. In fact, the flashiest part of the Belgian were his bright red boxing trunks, plastered with advertisements.

The unranked Coopman, who had barely been heard of outside Europe until he got his title shot last month, never had a chance as Ali controlled the tempo of the fight from the beginning and even spanked the challenger with his open glove in the first round.

Coopman, who says his idol is Joe Frazier, tried to pursue Ali in a style similar to Frazier — but he was a weak imitation of Smokin' Joe.

It was obvious that Ali could name the round and it was the fifth when he fed the Lion of Flanders a lightning diet of head punches — and the Lion had had his fill.

Coopman showed almost no offense from the outset and couldn't have landed more than two or three punches to Ali's head. And the body punches he connected with were ineffectual.

At 34, 6-feet-3 and 226 pounds, Ali was too experienced, too heavy and too fast for the 29-year-old sculptor of religious statues. The 6-foot Coopman came in at 206.

Ali, winning for the 50th time in his heralded career, was the heaviest he has ever been for 17 championship fights. It made not one bit of difference.

Ali got $1.1 million and while it was far from being his biggest payday, it might have been his easiest.

Ali, who has lost only twice since turning pro in 1960, is expected to defend his championship again in April in Costa Rica against Jimmy Young, who also appeared before this sellout crowd in the 12,000-seat Roberto Clemente Coliseum and pounded out a lopsided 10-round decision over Joe King Roman.

Coopman earned about $100,000 for his shellacking. It was more money than the Belgian had earned in all 27 of his previous fights, 24 of which he had won.

Coopman came in to the fight with a winning streak of 11. But those victories were over men with such names as Rosati, Faustino, Sylvere and Anobebele.

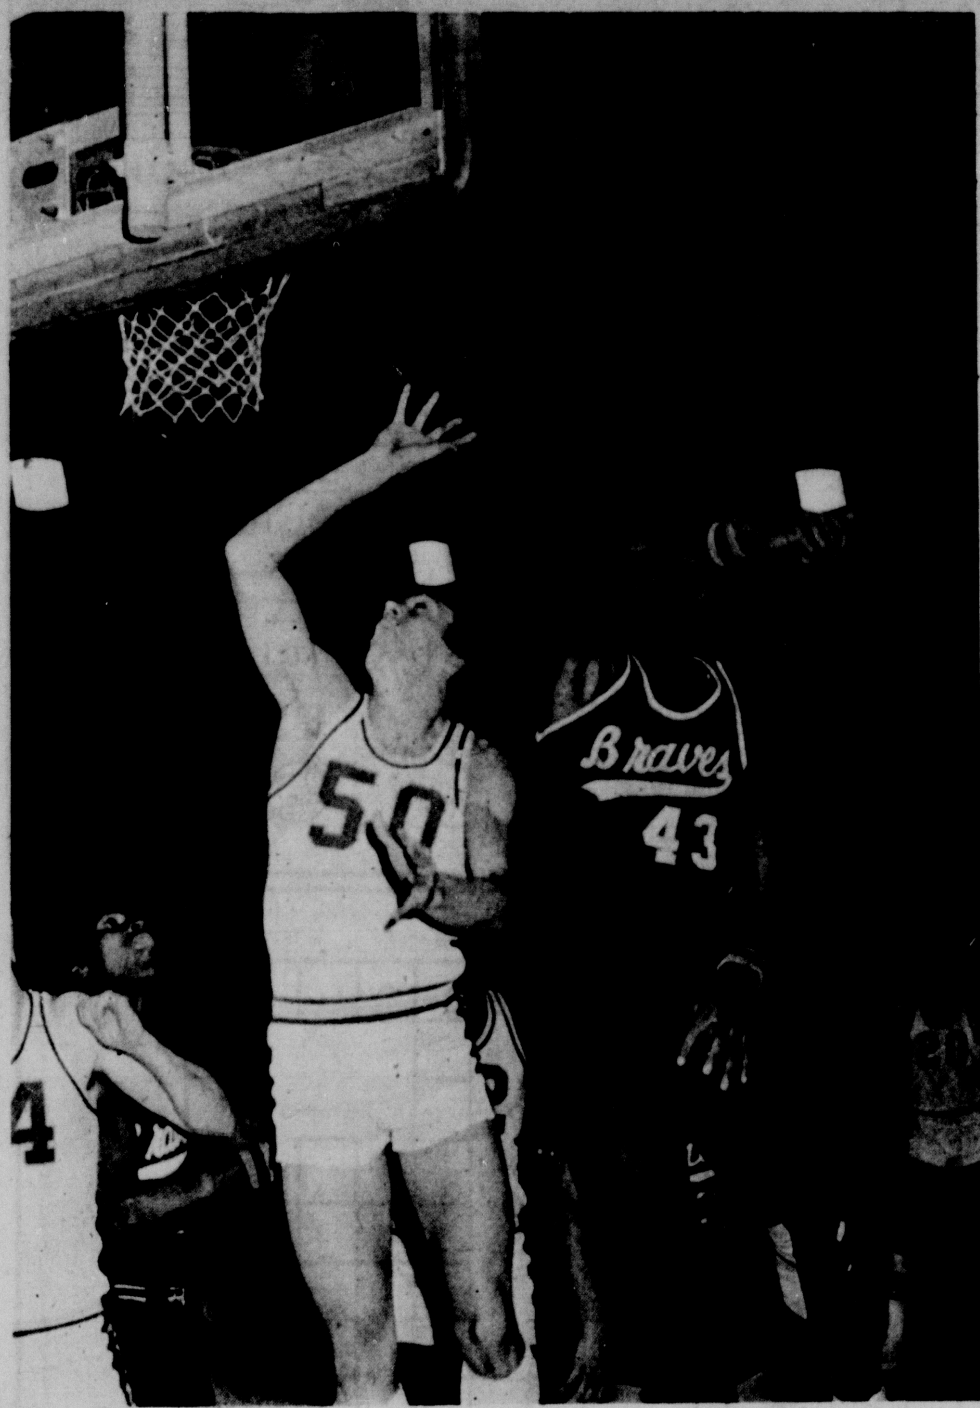

But the opponent this time was the world champion, who proved to be far beyond Coopman's class.

Puerto Rico's first heavyweight championship fight was televised live to the United States by CBS, and also was seen in Belgium and on closed-circuit television in San Juan's 24,000-seat baseball stadium.

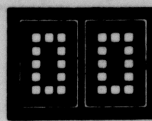

What the television viewers saw possibly more clearly than the fans at the coliseum in the fifth round were a series of punches marked by three particularly devastating right hands.

occurred here Friday night as OHS outlasted the Puxico Indians 76-73.

With Oran ahead by two points and two seconds left on the scoreboard clock an Eagle player was fouled and went to the line to shoot a 1-1. He hit the first shot to give the Eagles a 76-73 lead but just as the shot was going through the hoop the city lights of Oran went out and the game had to be aborted with Oran the victor.

Oran's 6-4 senior, Robert Taylor had his best game of his high school career with 30 points and 17 rebounds in the game. Randy Campbell of Puxico matched his point output with 30. Keith Campbell hauled in 17 caroms and scored 18 points for the Eagles.

Both teams displayed outstanding shooting in the game that saw the lead change hands many times before Oran was able to pin down the win in the final minutes of the game.

Ali remains champion

SAN JAUN (AP) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali tore down Jean-Pierre Coopman with his punches, then tried to build him up with words.

"He's a gentleman... he smiled at me every day," said Ali, after knocking out the Belgian challenger with a flurry of punches in the fifth round of their scheduled 15-round heavyweight championship bout Friday night.

Through an interpreter, Coopman said: "It felt like 500 pounds were falling on me and I fell down."

"I'm glad he's not hurt," Ali said of the 29-year-old sculptor, who came to the Caribbean to fight for one of sport's greatest prizes but who was outclassed from the opening bell.

"It may not look like it, but it was a tough fight," Ali insisted.

It certainly didn't look that way to those who watched.

Ali opened the fifth round circling and rifling jarring left jabs into the face of the plodding Coopman. Then, as the round drew to a close, Ali unleashed a rapid-fire series of bombs to Coopman's head and the challenger crumpled in his corner, to be counted out at 2:46 of the round by referee Ismael Quiones Fala.

Ali said he would have ended it in the first if he had been able to. But while the champion didn't end it too early on this occasion, he was in no mood to carry his opponent into the late rounds as he has done on past occasions.

"He's hard to hit. He's a scientific defensive fighter," Ali said of Coopman.

But to ringsiders, it was hard to recall any of Ali's punches that missed.

Coopman also had no offense at all. He couldn't have landed more than two or three punches to Ali's head and was ineffectual to the champion's body as well. In fact, the flashiest part of the Belgian were his bright red boxing trunks, plastered with advertisements.

The unranked Coopman, who had barely been heard of outside Europe until he got his title shot last month, never had a chance as Ali controlled the tempo of the fight from the beginning and even spanked the challenger with his open glove in the first round.

Coopman, who says his idol is Joe Frazier, tried to pursue Ali in a style similar to Frazier — but he was a weak imitation of Smokin' Joe.

It was obvious that Ali could name the round and it was the fifth when he fed the Lion of Flanders a lightning diet of head punches — and the Lion had had his fill.

Coopman showed almost no offense from the outset and couldn't have landed more than two or three punches to Ali's head. And the body punches he connected with were ineffectual.

At 34, 6-foot-3 and 226 pounds, Ali was too experienced, too heavy and too fast for the 29-year-old sculptor of religious statues. The 6-foot Coopman came in at 206.

Ali, winning for the 50th time in his heralded career, was the heaviest he has ever been for 17 championship fights. It made not one bit of difference.

Ali got $1.1 million and while it was far from being his biggest payday, it might have been his easiest.

Ali, who has lost only twice since turning pro in 1960, is expected to defend his championship again in April in Costa Rica against Jimmy Young, who also appeared before this sellout crowd in the 12,000-seat Roberto Clemente Coliseum and pounded out a lopsided 10-round decision over Joe King Roman.

Coopman earned about $100,000 for his shellacking. It was more money than the Belgian had earned in all 27 of his previous fights, 24 of which he had won.

Coopman came in to the fight with a winning streak of 11. But those victories were over men with such names as Rosati, Faustino, Sylvere and Anobelebe.

But the opponent this time was the world champion, who proved to be far beyond Coopman's class.

Puerto Rico's first heavyweight championship fight was televised live to the United States by CBS, and also was seen in Belgium and on closed-circuit television in San Juan's 24,000-seat baseball stadium.

What the television viewers saw possibly more clearly than the fans at the coliseum in the fifth round were a series of punches marked by three particularly devastating right hands.

Once his work was finished, Ali left the ring quickly — for him — with nothing left to do but nurse a cold which had bothered him much more than Coopman did.

ORAN— An unusual ending to an exciting basketball game

occurred here Friday night as OHS outlasted the Puxico Indians 76-73.

With Oran ahead by two points and two seconds left on the scoreboard clock an Eagle player was fouled and went to the line to shoot a 1-1. He hit the first shot to give the Eagles a 73-73 lead but just as the shot was going through the hoop the city lights of Oran went out and the game had to be aborted with Oran the victor.

Oran's 6-4 senior, Robert Taylor had his best game of his high school career with 30 points and 17 rebounds in the game. Randy Campbell of Puxico matched his point output with 30. Keith Campbell hauled in 17 caroms and scored 18 points for the Eagles.

The Ferret

The black-footed ferret is one of the rarest animals in North America. It is on the Endangered Species list. It has black feet, a black face mask, and a black tip on its tail. Its body is brown.

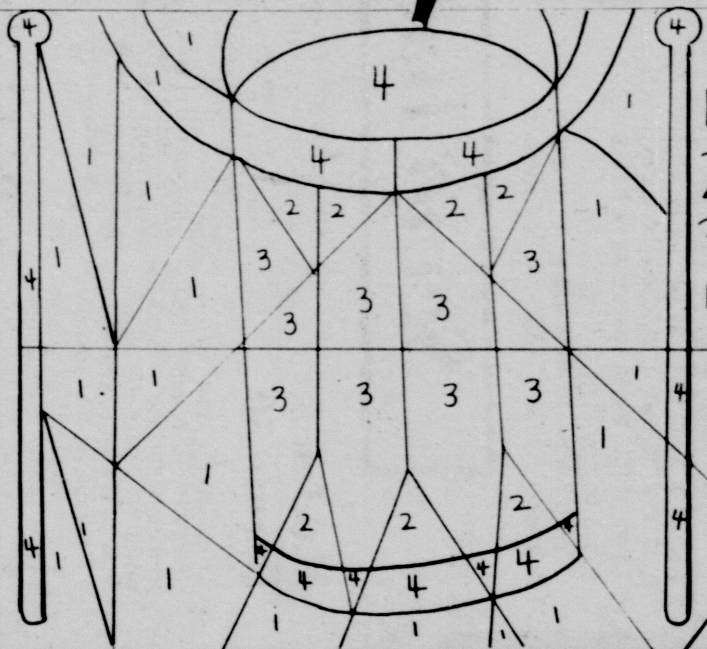

U.S. Fish and Wildlife service photo by Luther C. Goldman

Many people buy them for pets. Sometimes hunters use ferrets to flush rabbits out of holes. This is against the law in most states.

The black-footed ferret looks very much like the polecat. Both are members of the weasel family.

A Report Card for Kid Care!

Is Your Sitter Super?

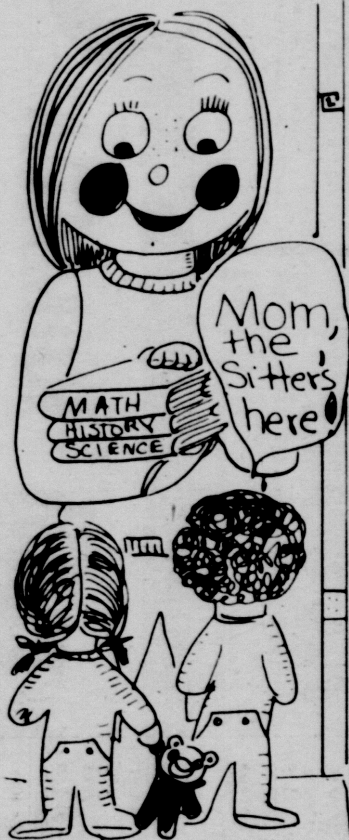

Super sitters enjoy playing with kids!

The Sitters' Side of Things!

Sitters have ideas, too. Below are some of the things they think about. How would your family do if a sitter graded them?

1. Are the kids polite and do they make me feel welcome?
2. Does the mother take time to give me good instructions? Does she expect too much of me?
3. Do the parents return home when they say they will?
4. Do the parents offer me a safe ride home?
5. Do the kids realize that I am following their mother's instructions?
6. Will I go back if I am asked?

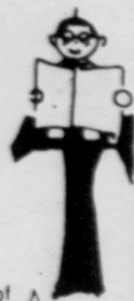

My sitter:

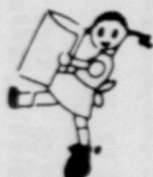

- ☐ is dependable and on time.
- ☐ spends time with me and helps me with my homework. She does not talk on the phone a lot to her friends.
- ☐ does not let me "run all over her." I respect her.
- ☐ carries out my parents' instructions.
- ☐ sits with me because she likes kids and not just because she wants the money.
- ☐ can handle emergencies.
- ☐ is alert and keeps a careful watch over everything I do.
- ☐ stays awake and checks on me even after I'm asleep.
- ☐ knows exactly how to get in touch with my parents, my doctor and a neighborhood friend.
- ☐ never leaves me alone in the house.

A score of 10 is super; 9 is O.K., 8 is so-so. If your sitter scores 7 or less she is poor. See if you can find someone else!

On this date: In 1795, the Dutch surrendered the Indian Ocean island of Ceylon to Britain.

In 1838, Samuel Morse gave the first public demonstration of the telegraph.

In 1846, Sara Bagley became the first woman telegrapher when she reported to work at the new telegraph office in Lowell, Mass.

In 1885, the Washington Monument was dedicated in the U.S. capital.

In 1919, after World War I, the Allies recognized the Polish government of Ignace Paderewski.

In 1956, Black Muslim leader Malcolm X was shot and killed as he was about to speak at a rally of several hundred black followers in New York City.

Ten years ago: French President Charles de Gaulle notified the NATO allies that all foreign troops in France would have to come under French control.

Five years ago: Israel said it would be willing to sign a peace agreement with Egypt but would not withdraw from any captured Egyptian territory.

One year ago: Washington figures John Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and Robert Mardian were sentenced to prison terms for their part in the Watergate cover-up.

In addition, Mrs. Slavin said that in cases where utilities estimate bills it is nearly impossible to accurately determine what the pass-through fuel cost should be since that amount fluctuates widely from month to month.

Records of the commission show that in 1975, the monthly fuel adjustment cost to the average customer ranged from 60 cents to $4.76.

In earlier testimony, Donald McPhee, production vice president for KCP&L, said coal suppliers realize utilities have a procedure for passing increased fuel costs directly on to the customer, and "they use this as an argument" for increasing the prices in supply contracts.

But he said his company has resisted those efforts and has even brought in outside consultants to assist in negotiations for fuel supplies.

Washington news briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee studying a resolution that would establish a panel to monitor intelligence agencies is altering sections of the measure that drew the strongest criticism from the Ford administration. The Government Operations Committee voted Friday to delete a section that would require the White House to give Congress prior notification of secret intelligence operations. At the same time, the panel amended a provision that would have given a new Senate oversight panel powers to declassify secrets on its own. Meanwhile, Chairman Frank Church of the Senate intelligence committee blasted Ford's intelligence reorganization plan, saying it would "give the CIA a bigger shield and a longer sword with which to stab about."

A federal judge said Friday the time has come for the FBI to insure that its 21.4 million criminal files are not misused to damage the reputations of people with incorrect or out of date police records. U.S. District Judge Lewis Smith Jr. declined, however, to order the FBI to seek out and eliminate all of its old or inaccurate data. Smith's decision came as a result of a suit filed by John Brent Tarleton, who complained that his file carried arrest records more than 20 years old. The judge said nearly 70 per cent of the FBI files include at least one entry of an arrest that fails to show what happened to the charges.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's plan to go around Congress in setting up new rules to change the $5.8-billion food stamp program is being criticized by some lawmakers who say the move is political. Ford unveiled his plan in letters delivered to congressional committee chairmen Friday while he was campaigning in New Hampshire. The plan would trim the food stamp rolls by 25 per cent, cut the huge budget by 20 per cent and increase benefits to about 24 per cent of the current recipients. The surprise move came as the Senate Agriculture Committee was finishing work on a set of comprehensive proposals to reform the food stamp program.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Securities and Exchange Commission investigators are preparing to sift through the financial records of the Boeing Corp. in a continuing probe of giant American corporations suspected of making improper payments overseas. A U.S. District Court judge on Friday ordered Boeing to turn over to the SEC any documents that might bear on foreign payoffs by the aircraft manufacturer. Meanwhile, sources said a Senate subcommittee is considering expanding their investigation to include Boeing and certain other firms. Boeing spokesmen repeatedly have denied making any improper or illegal payments similar to those admitted by the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. and other large U.S. firms.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singer Tony Bennett will entertain at a black-tie White House dinner President and Mrs. Ford are giving Monday night for the nation's governors.
